these popular magazines, ret der long descriptions and olahorate pedfery unnecessary. They are known and read in every corner of our country, and are as household words in the mouths of those who pretend to judge in literature or tasts in art. The pens of our most accomplished writers, as well as the burins of the ablest artists, are enlisted to curich and adorn their pages, and all that is now famous in letters or beautiful in engravings, in the world of periodical literature, is owing to the footoring are and lavish expense of these two prominent American periodicals. Their imitators fail always in equalling them, for want of public support, and the poor dupes who are led to subscribed to the heatilyborn enterprises which spring up every year to delude the public with promises of wind and worse of sound, find that these well-established works are, as yot, the only reliable sources to which they can look for a faithful performance of all contracts entered into with subscribers. The publishers of "Godey" and of "Graham" have cerumined that for
